USE MEN RIGHT WARNING GIVEN TO EMPLOYERS

Mr. I. Tuxford, Speaking To Engineering Society Discusses Problems

URGES PROFIT SHARING

Chinese Laborer Must Receive Consideration, Speaker Declares

Sounding a warning to employers, in China urging control of labor by the heads of big firms, and recommending investigation by employers of bonus, superannuation, profit-sharing and housing schemes, Mr. I. Tuxford, speaking before the Engineering Society of China yesterday afternoon, saw the advent of the inevitable paid agitator unless steps were taken to meet the labor problem in this country.

The speaker said the labor question in China is serious and is one demanding immediate action by employers if Chinese labor is to be kept from following the lines taken by American and European labor.

QUESTION SERIOUS ONE

Mr. Tuxford said that the question of labor nowadays was getting more and more serious and was a question open to a great deal of discussion and he thought that by ventilating the question and obtaining the views of those who had experience of different classes of labor it might be possible to avoid in China in the future the friction which is continually occurring between employers and labor in Europe and America.

He thought it should not be difficult at the present time in China to arrive at a conclusion of what is fair pay for good work.

There was a question in this connection with this which he believed if properly discussed and ventilated and taken in hand in time would tend to put an end to industrial disputes in China and that was by giving the workmen an interest in their work either in the way of a bonus profit sharing or by superannuation funds.

Many firms gave their employers a bonus of so much per-cent on the year's working, that was all very well but it did not keep their labor satisfied.

Give them a bonus by all means but hold part of it back and put it in a fund to the credit of each employee, then he has something to look forward to, to help him in his old age.

STRIKES ARE RECENT

If a certain amount is kept back and the employee knows that the harder he works the more there will be to come to him either as a bonus or in the way of profit sharing, the less likelihood there will be of any strikes.

It was only in the last few years that strikes among Chinese labor were heard of and there appeared to be possibilities of many industrial strikes in the future unless the question was tackled in a fair and square manner so that both the employer and employee got a fair deal. By doing this the ground could be cut away from under the feet of the professional agitator.

The professional agitator got his own way in England long before the war simply because the workmen were not fairly paid. Permanent way laborers in England before the war received anything from 18 shillings to 25 shillings a week and were expected to house, feed and clothe a family on it.

In China until recently $6 or $8 per mensem was considered a good wage for a coolie and his family but even a coolie can only live in the greatest discomfort and squalor on pay of this kind. Discontented and badly-housed and poorly fed labor was of no use to any employer and it was only by giving them a decent standard of living that good reliable labor can be kept, and kept contented with an interest in the work they were paid to do. Under these conditions the laborer sees that the particular organisation for which he is working must prosper if he was going to keep a good job, and he would put his back into it and help to make that organisation a paying concern knowing that he was being well-treated and looked after and not receiving just a bare living wage.

KEEP LABOR CONTENTED

This labor question will assuredly come, indeed has come in China, just the same as in any other part of the world and unless employers work out means of

PRODUCE MORE COAL, STINNES URGES GERMANS

Consumers Unions Set Forth As Preventative Of War And Famine

TREATY IS DISCUSSED

People Of Former Empire Are Warned Against Taking Pact Lightly

(Reuter's Service)

Shanghai, November 2.—The following are extracts from a German propaganda wireless message from Nauen, picked up by the United States Consulate-General wireless station here today. They are issued with all due reserve:

Berlin, November 1.—Herr Hugo Stinnes, a leading industrial magnate, delivered a speech, in the nature of a program, before the united committee of the Economical Council and the Coal Council, regarding the nationalising of mines.

He declared that, in view of the state of exchange, German productivity was a question of life of death and that production depended entirely upon the coal supply, which was at present absolutely inadequate. He pointed out the necessity for increasing coal production by longer hours of work as the only means to save millions from starvation and to avoid a possible civil war.

WANTS CONSUMERS' UNION

He advocated, as the best plan for socialisation, the formation of a consumers' union of which the majority of shares should be owned by the State or communities.

He recommended that a similar plan should be followed in other spheres, especially by all electrical and transport concerns, and finally by all industrial companies.

He advocated that these unions should finauce the whole coal production of the country, and argued that his plan of nationalisation would not exclude individualism, or endanger the coal supply by experiments.

Peking, October 30.—The following German wireless propaganda message from Nauen was picked up by the Chinese Wireless Station here today. It is issued with all due reserve:

Berlin, October 29.—In the Reichstag yesterday the Social Democratic Leader, Herr Scheidemann, contrasted the Chancellor's pessimistic utterances with his former election promises to the middle-class parties, attacked the Right Parties and General von

The army is expected to be completed in three months time. All indications point to the imminence of a big Bolshevist attack against General Wrangel's front and General Wrangel is preparing for it.

Another report states that 12,000 of General Budienny's cavalry are marching against General Wrangel.

Japan Agrees To Customs Surcha...

MILLIONS SOUGHT IN U.S. TO SAVE FAMINE VICTIMS

(CHINA PRESS STAFF WIRE)

Peking, Nov. 2.—The province of Chihli will attempt to secure a loan of $12,900,000 from the United States, the money to be used for the alleviation of suffering brought about by the drought. The amount is based on an official survey of the needs of famine sufferers.

A resolution was passed by the provincial assembly at Tientsin today to take steps to secure the loan, which will be secured by the provincial land tax.

The Central Government voted today to float a loan for $4,000,000 to be used for present famine needs.

The New Consortium believes that a loan for famine needs is not suitable for the first enterprise of the new banking group, according to cables received here by Japanese bankers. The cable adds that the decision was reached after a long discussion.

Peking foreign bankers can not agree to loan money for famine needs. They are at present deadlocked over technicalities which are fundamental to neither side. In the meantime millions are starving.

He declared that it seemed to him as though the intelligence of the British people was half asleep, as though their consciences were half-blunted and their souls half dead. Mr. Asquith said that the only remedy for Ireland was the adoption there as elsewhere of complete, free and unrestricted self-government, such as existed in the Colonies.

Election Result Due Tonight; Both Sides Predict Victory

Polls Closing In West At 11 O'clock This Morning And Returns Should Come In Afternoon

Results of the presidential election in the United States will probably be known in Shanghai late tonight as the polls will close at 8 o'clock this morning (Shanghai time) on the East coast. There is a difference of three hours in time between San Francisco and New York. The counting of votes will not be completed until late this afternoon.

Through the courtesy of Captain W. I. Eisler, Shanghai representative of the United States Shipping Board, THE CHINA PRESS will receive election news as soon as it is picked up by the wireless operators of Shipping Board steamers here.

Reuter's Telegraph Agency has arranged to receive a "flash" on the result in each State. The "flash" will merely bring the name of the state and the word republican or democrat while additional details will be sent from the United States later.

MESSAGES RECEIVED

The following messages were received yesterday by the U. S. Shipping Board steamer West Hepburn, which is at the Kiangnan Dock. They are published through the kindness of Captain Eisler.

Marion, October 31.—Senator Harding, in a statement today declared that the election would turn on two clearly drawn issues the Paris League of Nations and a constructive domestic policy.

He said: "The League question, as the Democrats presented it, summed up the question: 'Shall we enter the Paris League of Nations, assuming, among other obligations, Article Ten?'"

Harding said the Democrats answered "Yes," the Republicans, "No." He asserted the country already had answered, "No," and that, as a consequence, the Democrats had deceived the people as to the real nature of the League of Nations issue by making it appear that the Republicans opposed any international association at all.

CLEAN-CUT ISSUE

He said, in domestic affairs, there was a clean-cut issue between "the follies of Wilson's policy and definite constructive policy."

The Republicans proposed also to make public a telegram sent all Republican Senate nominees, saying that "the choice of a Republican Senate would be a contribution to a United America, ready to go forward to a new confidence in achievements."

Cincinnatti, October 31.—Senator Harding today issued a statement, saying that the people believe in the Republican policy against America entering a fraternity of nations to prevent war and to co-operate for peace. He declared that a Republican administration would do its best to unite America behind and for an association of nations which we may join with safety, honor and good conscience."

COX TAKES IT EASY

Dayton, October 31.—Governor Cox passed the day quietly at home. In a statement he asserted that the election of Harding meant that the peace treaty would not be submitted to the Senate for ratification. "This would result in controversies and confusion," he said. After visiting 36 States, he said the sentiment of the country favored entering the League. After election, Cox plans a long vacation hunting in Mississippi.

San Francisco, October 31.—Pitman, manager for the Democratic party, in a statement, said that Cox would carry all of the Mountain and Pacific States except California, Oregon and Washington. He classed Oregon and Washington as doubtful.

SLOGAN "AMERICA FIRST" DISLIKED BY EUROPEANS

Minister Declares Trade Term Is Misunderstood As Being Selfishness

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Oct. 4 (by mail).—The slogan "America First" is unpopular among Europeans, who deem it an expression of selfishness, is the view of the Rev. Charles S. Macfarland, General Secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, who has just returned from a series of religious conferences in Switzerland and a speaking tour of Western European cities.

"For an American to be in Europe at this time is humiliating and sometimes almost disheartening," said Dr. Macfarland. "I found the people there confused. They do not know what to make of America's present aloofness; it seems to them such a sharp contrast to our attitude during the war.

NEED MORAL SUPPORT

"I found the people of Europe industriously working at the problems of reconstruction. While their economic needs are great, one of their greatest needs at the present time is that of moral support.

"The American nation and the American people, on the whole, have not as yet suffered irretrievably in the estimation of Europeans," continued Dr. Macfarland. "They still believe in us and look to us for help.

CALLS U. S. SELFISH

"But thoughtful Europeans are disturbed about one phrase which frequently re-echoes across the "America First." To them it sounds like the words that used to come from across the Rhine—"Deutschland ueber alles," not with the same aggressiveness, but with something of the same selfishness."

War Officials In Denial Of Waste In Material Sale

(U. S. S. Wireless)

Washington, October 31.—The U. S. A statement issued said: "It must be remembered that the Department was making purchases of war materials while contemplating a field force of a million and had the war continued another year, the supplies on hand would have been totally inadequate."

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Mr. Zee Ting-zung, who presides over the workings of a cotton mill on the Lay Road, happened into the place a few days ago and gave a couple of gasps of horror. What he saw was Li Siau-tsz, sawing industriously with a knife at one of the big leather belts used in operating the mill's machinery, but at that time quiescent.

Zee skipped silently to the office and telephoned for a policeman. When he returned Li was gone, as was likewise about ten feet of the belting. While Zee was mournfully surveying the hiatus in his plant's propulsive gear the police showed up, bent a sympathetic ear and then went out and collared Li Siau-tsz, who was too well ballasted to have put much mileage between himself and the cotton mill.

Li registered extreme astonishment on being told that he had fractured a statute and retained his look of pained surprise until next morning when his name was called in court. Then a look of glad relief spread itself over his face and he started in to clear matters up.

He had not stolen the belt, as alleged in the charge just read, he explained. True, he had sliced a section out of mill property, but only that he might examine the stuff. He had merely meant to look at it and then to return it.

After the court had finished gasping it reached for the red-ink bottle and wrote upon the charge sheet in a firm, spencerian hand after the name of Li the brief but expressive legend "Two Weeks."

Wong Ah-do was charged with riding a bicycle after dark without having a lighted lamp attached thereto, which is not in accord with the city traffic ordinances.

Wong said it was like this: he had been riding blithely along the Sinza Road with his lamp gleaming brightly when suddenly and with no consideration for the rights and convenience of cyclists a Sikh police constable had stepped out of an alleyway and become sadly mixed with the cycle and the witness, the three of them coming down with loud emphasis on the road. Naturally, after a disentanglement had been effected the light was found to have expired.

The Sikh, when it came his turn to talk, admitted stepping out of the alleyway, and confessed that it was probable his advent was not expected by Wong. As to a collision, there had been none, other than Wong's running against the regulations and when he felt of the lamp to see whether it had been alight at all he found it cold.

The Magistrate gave Wong a strong talk on the virtues and advantages of veracity and then, it having been his first offense, told him to go home.

JEWS COMPLAIN OF PERSECUTION IN NEW REPUBLIC

Poles Charged With Use Of Cruel Methods On Former Allies

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 30, (By mail)—Continued persecution of Jews with bloodshed and cruelty in Poland and Hungary is reported by Mr. Morris Rothenberg, chairman of the executive committee of the Provisional American Jewish Congress who returned here recently from the Jewish World Relief Conference in Carlsbad.

Mr. Rothenberg declares that attacks on Jews in Poland have ceased at no time since the armistice. He says that while anti-Semitic excesses in Poland were mitigated by the protest meeting held in America, "assaults upon persons and property in a smaller degree continued throughout Poland."

AIDED POLISH ARMY

Mr. Rothenberg said that during the advance of the Soviet armies on Warsaw the Jews readily enlisted in the Polish armies, but that they were attacked and persecuted by the Poles and were given the "most filthy and menial work to perform."

The Jews complained to the military authorities, but the persecution was not mitigated.

"The spirit of the Jews in Poland is being utterly crushed by these terrible events, and they feel that they cannot much longer bear up unless these terrible excesses are stopped" he added.

MURDERS IN HUNGARY

According to Mr. Rothenberg, 300 Jews have been murdered in Hungary from December, 1919 to June, 1920, and he asserts that the officers and soldiers of the White Army are the chief fomentors of anti-Semitism.

Jewish students are unable to get into the universities. Many of them, he says, have been compelled to go to neighboring countries in order to pursue their studies, and are experiencing terrible want and suffering.

HUGE SUM SPENT

New York, October 13, (By mail)—Over $33,000,000 has been expended for the relief of Jewish war sufferers in Eastern Europe and other parts of the world since the outbreak of the war, according to a report of the American Jewish Relief Committee.

This money has been distributed in over 30 countries, but more than $15,000,000 of it has been expended in Poland, Lithuania and Courland.

Appropriations for relief work are being made at between $500,000 and $1,000,000 a month by the Joint Distribution Committee, of which Mr. Felix M. Warburg is chairman.

Famous Ferris Wheel Is To Be Dismantled

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Sept. 22 (by mail.)—The Ferris Wheel, which has attracted much attention among foreign visitors in Paris for the past 20 years, but which landscape artists and architects consider a descration of the artistic horizon of Paris, is boomed.

The work of demolishing the wheel is to be started in a few days.

It was built at the time of the Paris Exhibition in 1900, is more than 300 feet in diameter, and contains several million pounds of steel, which will be used in the reconstruction of the devastated regions.

PORTO RICO SUGAR HELD OFF MARKET BECAUSE OF PRICE

(Reuter's Service)

San Juan, Port Rico, September 15, (By mail)—No Porto Rico sugars are being forced on the market. Whatever sugars there are here are being held for better or worse.

(This is evidently being done to prevent refiners from reducing the price of raw sugar, as the Cuban growers have asked the Porto Rican producers to join them in an attempt to prevent a cut in prices.)

For the first time in many years, two weeks have gone by without the shipment of any sugar from the island. Approximately 640,000 bags, or 80,000 tons, remain in the island for export.

Porto Rico produced in this year's crop 485,887 short tons of sugar, according to a final statistical report just issued by Mr. J. Ruiz Soler, secretary of the Port Rico Sugar Producers' Association. This is 7,000 tons in excess of his estimate made at the commencement of the grinding season, and about 80,000 tons greater than the production during the crop season of 1918-19. It is also 20,000 tons in excess of the production of 1917-18.

Travellers Again Welcome In Holland

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Holland, Sept. 24 (by mail).—Holland has lifted a number of travel restrictions upon foreign visitors who have heretofore been subjected to considerable difficulties and annoyances.

The new regulations do away with the former compulsory police registration of tourists from America and western Europe, but it is still imposed upon Germans, Russians and others from eastern countries, owing to the fear of Bolshevist infection.

As a result of the former stringent rules, Holland has had very little tourist traffic this summer.

making labor satisfied by giving them decent pay for decent work knowing that their old age is provided for partly with what they can save out of a fair wage and partly by a system of bonuses or superannuation funds, unless this was done paid agitators would have their day here the same as they have in other countries.

The Chinese laborer or artisan is a fairly contented person and the thing for employers to do is to keep him so, and the best way to do so is to devise some means whereby this can be done. Every strike means more pay to the laborer, and less result to the employer forestall this and labor troubles will not worry us in China.

What is needed is not organised labor by labor leaders and agitators but organised labor by employers. By this he meant that if the employers have some profit-sharing or pension scheme it naturally follows that in order to uphold this scheme their labor will be content to be organised by them so as to protect themselves against any loss of profits. Then there were the different scales of labor which might be put into three classes skilled, unskilled and common or coolie labor.

It appeared to Mr. Tuxford that the skilled class of labor is the class to be legislated for at the moment. When a satisfactory scheme for this class is evolved then the scheme can be extended to the requirements of other classes of labor.

PROPOSES SCHEME

Of course there are several factors to be considered when attempting to put satisfactory schemes into force, the main ones being as follows:

(1) Workmen's Guilds.

(2) The method of obtaining labor and paying for it through a Chinese foreman.

(3) Nationality of Employers.

Regarding the guilds, Mr. Tuxford expressed the opinion that the guilds would be just as pleased to see labor organised as would the employers. With proper organisation the guilds could keep in touch with the employers, advising them from time to time as to the cost of living, because the cost of living has a direct bearing on the cost of labor.

The method of obtaining labor and paying for it through a Chinese foreman has been in existence for years and it is difficult to see how else they were going to obtain it. The only thing to do is having once obtained your men to see that their wages are paid direct to them and not to the foreman. In a place like Shanghai where there are large employers of labor of different nationalities each nationality has probably a different point of view, but these different nationalities must not forget that they are all dealing with the same class of labor, i.e., Chinese labor, and therefore owing to these differences of nationality China opens up a much more difficult field for negotiation than either Europe or America.

It therefore behoved those firms who employ a large amount of labor to give their views on the subject and make an attempt to work together and see that their employees were properly looked after, thereby ensuring to themselves a sufficient quantity of satisfied labor.

HOUSING CONDITIONS

There was coolie labor of all kinds, take the ordinary Shanghai coolies for instance hauling carts and doing similar work. Do they have a decent life? No, they do not and eventually they are doing to kick and every year the kick is going to be bigger and empolyers will be mulcted out of larger and larger increases. Treat them properly, if possible, include housing arrangements in the scheme, it should not be impossible to persuade landlords to build decent workmen's houses and let the employers rent them for their labor, treating the rent as part of their wages, and they would avoid, if a poper comprehensive scheme could be worked out, what has happened in Europe and America. Mr. Tuxford was aware that he was opening up a vast field of discussion, but if they looked back on the history of labor they would see that labor before the great war was never anything like properly treated and they had here for the moment a labor field to work in which has been more or less free from strikes and other troubles.

SOUNDS WARNING

It was no use trying to hide facts and saying "Wait until strikes do commence and then think of something," that was a wrong point of view. Prevention is better than cure and every strike in the world has each time added a little more to the pay of the strikers, and so it goes on, a little more pay each time ultimately adds up to a large sum, and it was better to spend a certain amount on organising proper schemes to keep and keep comfortably in good houses, a good class of labor that you rely on than have a shifting class of labor going from one job to another simply because they were in a dissatisfied and discontented frame of mind.

The reading of Mr. Tuxford's paper was listened to with interest by a large gathering, and an interesting discussion followed, among those speaking being Major Hilton-Johnson, Messrs. Roebick, Beswick, Godfrey, Okada, Moh and Wood.

Educational Review

The final quarterly number of the Educational Review, published by the China Christian Educational Association, has just made its appearance and a copy of it has just been received by THE CHINA PRESS.

Fourteen articles written by men of world wide repute on educational questions are published and the journal is full of interesting reading matter.

Mr. Brownell Gage answers the query of "What are We Here For" by a scholarly treatise. The most comprehensive aim, he wrote, was to help the development of the Kingdom of Democracy of God in China, especially through the channels of high education.

Mr. Henry P. Fairchild writes on "The Matter with Teaching," presenting the many attractions of the profession, which at its best, is stimulating, interesting, honorable and broadening.

An address by Dr. W. W. Peters, authority on health education, entitled "The Health Problem in Mission Schools,' delivered at the annual meeting of the Central China Christian Educational Association, Kuling, last August, is published.

"Important Development in Missionary Interest in Agricultural Education" is the topic chosen by Mr. John H. Reisner. He describes at length the interest taken by the mission school on agriculture and predicts the early introduction of the subject in the curriculum of the schools.

A survey of the educational situation in Honan is given by Mr. G. E. Simmons, principal of the St. Andrew's School, Kaifeng, Honan. Mr. E. D. Vernik, writes on group athletics, while Mr. S. M. Dean has an article on "The Play Laboratory" for primary schools.

Miss Dora Zimmerman tells of the facilities for the education of girls in non-Christian Schools in Ningpo. Mr. B. B. Chapman of Wuchang gives a report on normal schools on behalf of the China Christian Educational Association. Secretary L. B. Moss of the East China Accrediting Committee reports on a marking system which might be made uniform among the mission schools in East China.

Dr. Fong F. Sec, chief editor of the Commercial Press, makes an interesting contribution on "Government Education," in which he enumerated the different government attempts in the promotion of education in this country.

The reports of the meeting of the Central China Christian Educational Association and the annual meeting of the Honan Christian Educational Association complete the contents of the journal.

TO WAKE UP A LAZY LIVER

For "liverishness," constipation, biliousness, headache, drowsiness, bad complexion, etc., try drinking before breakfast a little Alkia Saltrates dissolved in hot water. Feel fit as a prize fighter all day.

When you sleep the heart immediately slows down and then the sluggishly moving blood deposits greasy and acidulous poisons —toxins—throughout the system. Next morning the blood flows more rapidly again, but cannot flush out all the impurities accumulated overnight. That means a clogged liver and constipation, "the beginning of all disease." So poisons are sucked into the blood through thousands of absorbent intestinal glands.

You should thoroughly cleanse the whole system by washing out all the poisons in the morning. Then your body acts better, same as a fire burns better with soot cleared from chimney. Ask your chemist for a few ounces of refined Alkia Saltrates, and take before breakfast and once after the noon or evening meal, a teaspoonful of this dissolved in a half tumbler of hot water. The before-breakfast dose promptly washes out all mucous and acidulous poisons from the entire intestinal tract, leaving the way clear to receive and properly digest food. The saltrated water also reaches the liver by absorption, thus stimulating that organ and removing any congestion or sluggishness. This remarkable Alkia Saltrates compound is practically tasteless, also harmless as sugar, in any quantity, and it never gripes. Children love it, especially with a little sugar added. It is the greatest solvent and eliminant known to science, and its amazing curative properties will make you a crank on the subject of internal cleanliness.—C. N. H.

NOTE.—We are informed that Messrs. A. S. Watson and Co. of 16 Nanking Road, Shanghai, stock a specially high grade of Alkia Saltrates and are in a position to supply this remarkable compound at very low cost.

The China Mail Steamship Company's steamer Nanking is due to reach Woosung at daylight today and the tender for incoming passengers will leave for the ship at 7 a.m., returning at about 11 o'clock.

The Nanking will take 69 cabin passengers from Shanghai for San Francisco, including among them four sons and a grandson of the late President Yuan Shih-k'ai who are going to enter school in the United States. They are travelling under the care of Mr. L. W. Bocker, of the Associated Mission Treasurers. Also leaving by the Nanking is Mr. K. T. Quang, who is on his way to his new post as Minister from China to Mexico and Cuba. He is accompanied by three secretaries of legation.

The Nanking sails for Yokohama tomorrow, the tender conveying outgoing passengers leaving the Customs Jetty at 10 a.m.

Fast Work By Brigade Presents Bad Blaze

Fast work by Chief Officer Pett's firemen from the Central Station choked off a blaze that promised serious proportions in the congested Canton Road district shortly after midnight last night. The fire broke out in the upper story of a biscuit factory on Canton Road just east of Honan Road and was tearing fiercely through the roof when the detachment from Central arrived. Ten minutes work checked the spread of the flames and saved the property to either side. The upper part of the factory was gutted.

The fire reporter is unable to wax more enthusiastic regarding the really admirable work of the fire-fighters by reason of his having been just in line with the nozzle of the big hose, with his attention distracted, when the pressure was turned on.

FILE ANSWER TO SUIT

Answer was filed in the United States Court yesterday to the suit brought against the Philippine National Bank by Chang Yung-kong claiming damages of G.$21,472.50.

The claim alleges that defendants refused to honor two certificates of deposit issued to Messrs. Mencarini and Co. and endorsed over to complainant. The bank's answer declares that the certificates were non-negotiable for the claimant and that a lien was held against them on account of advances made to the firm to which they were issued.

Obituary

MR. DAVID D. BASSETT

Friends of Mr. David D. Bassett, member of the Astor House orchestra, heard with a shock of his death early yesterday morning following a heart attack.

Mr. Bassett complained of feeling ill after playing through the tea dance Monday afternoon and early in the evening started out for a carriage drive, thinking that it would do him good. He had scarcely left the Astor House when the mafoo noticed that he seemed to be very ill and drove him back to his rooms in the Astor annex. A physician was called and all possible assistance given but he failed to rally and died at about 2:30 a.m.

Mr. Bassett was 24 years old and came to the East last spring with the Eltinge Company. He returned to Shanghai and was a member for a time of the Carlton orchestra, later joining that at the Astor House. He is survived by his mother and father and a sister, who live in Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held at the Bubbling Well Chapel at 3 p.m. today and all friends are invited to attend.

CONDUCTED BY DUDLEY BURROWS

AUSTRALIAN IS INCENSED OVER POLICY OF RUGBY AUTHORITIES IN ANTIPODES

Says Short Sightedness Has All But Ruined Game. Claiming Greed For Gain As Worst Enemy Of Sport—Differences In Attendance

By John Hughes
(Sydney University and Australia)

The International Rugby Board has gone more than half way in meeting the wishes of the Australian and New Zealand Rugby Unions about amending the rules of the game.

Many people—myself included—think the Board has been rather too complaisant. I am certain that, if it had known as much about the real motives that have been at the back of the Australasian agitation as I do, it would have been extremely chary of having anything to do with it.

The New Zealand unions (says a Christchurch cable to The Daily Mail) have now taken the gloves off in real earnest and are urging the All New Zealand Union to adopt the amended rules as played by Auckland and risk a break with the English Rugby Union.

I find it difficult to write with restraint about this attitude. All talk about "reasonable attempts to improve the game" is sheer hypocrisy. "Gate money" is the only consideration that weighs with both these unions, or, to put it another way, fear of the growing popularity of the Northern Union game.

With that game I personally have no quarrel. The Australian Rugby Union acted in a foolish manner from the start in regard to it. There is plenty of room for both codes of Rugby in England and plenty of room, too, in Australia.

SHORT-SIGHTED POLICY

But the short-sighted people who were in charge of the administrative side of the older code in Australia went out of their way to "smash" the newer code, with the result that much bitterness was engendered. Since 1908 the popularity of Rugby in Australia has steadily declined.

Twenty to thirty thousand people used to attend the leading club matches each Saturday in the old days—now they have transferred their allegiance to the thirteen-a-side game and only a few hundreds still remain faithful to "Rugger."

When England played Sydney in the opening match of the English Northern Union team at Sydney in June last more than 65,000 people paid for admission. In July a New Zealand Rugby Union team visited Sydney—not five thousand people saw the matches they played.

What a contrast to the old days of 1907, when New South Wales beat New Zealand on the Sydney cricket ground. At the first match more than 50,000 people saw the game! The most recent Rugby Union visitors from New Zealand made no secret of their disappointment at the poor "gates" that greeted them.

The recent action of their governing bodies in New Zealand, detailed in The Daily Mail cable, is undoubtedly the result of the financial failure of the New Zealand team's Australian tour.

Until this year the Northern Union game has made little headway in New Zealand. Auckland was the only city in which it seriously threatened the supremacy of the older game. But one of the results of the visit of the English Northern Union team to New Zealand has been increased public support for Northern Union football in other parts of New Zealand besides Auckland.

HINT TO ENGLISH UNION

The fact is that, except at the 'varsity, the schools, and the Royal Naval and Military colleges, the Rugby Union game in Australia is as "dead as mutton." For this the ostrich-like policy pursued in the past by the Australian Rugby Union authorities is solely responsible.

Now New Zealand sees the writing on the wall, promptly "gets the wind up," and talks loudly of breaking away from the English Rugby Union. Well, this time, I hope the English Rugby Union will drop its attitude of politeness and indulge in some plain speaking.

If Australia and New Zealand want to play Northern Union football, let them come out into the open and say so, and not try to throw dust in people's eyes by talking about "improving" Rugby.

England I am sure will always stand by the grand old game; so will South Africa. If "gate money" is the only thing worrying the Australian and New Zealand unions, let them play the game that will preserve their gate money. There are, I hope, other things in "Rugger" besides considerations of finance.

Two Ollerdessens On Cricket Eleven

Mr. C. E. Ollerdessen was requisitioned at the last minute on Monday to accompany the cricket team to Hongkong, Mr. McMeekin having notified the committee that he would be unable to serve.

Mr. Ollerdessen—brother of "Harry-boy"—will be of great value to the team, being a splendid medium-slow bowler from the "port" side. He bowls from 'round'-wicket and gets plenty of "work" on the ball.

Marine 'Gineers Won't Enter League

At a meeting held last evening the Marine Engineers' Club of Shanghai voted against entering the Shanghai Football League for this season, preferring instead to remain independent, playing as many friendly games as possible.

The Engineers, while having plenty of playing members available at this time, found that so many changes of residence were contemplated that it would be unwise to attempt the upkeep of a League team.

Meanwhile, however, they will retain their good standing with the League clubs, and will play a full schedule of games during the season, providing the men are available for a team.

BECKETT SAYS FANS EXULT TO SEE HIM BEATEN

Intimates That Promoter Cochran Has Dealt Unfairly In Contract Matters

There is little chance of the fight between Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight champion, and Frank Moran of America ever coming off, at least in this country, said "Berkeley" in a recent issue of the London Daily Mail. Beckett is prepared to go on provided an additional £1,000 is added to the purse, the writer added.

His reason for making this demand, stated in a Southampton paper, is that when he signed the contract with Mr. Cochran for two matches he did not know that his second opponent—his first was Wells—was to be such a "drawing card" as Moran.

"In reply to this", says the writer, "Mr. Cochran assures me that Beckett signed a second contract with him and in that it was clearly stated that Beckett's opponent was to be Moran. Beckett's fee for that job was to be £2,300, and at the time of signing he made no objections to the financial terms; indeed, he has stated that he was prepared to box Moran for any side stake up to £5,000.

MORAN IS READY

"In a cable sent recently from the United States Moran said he was quite ready and willing to come over and box Beckett. Mr. Cochran is also quite ready and willing to carry out the match on the terms of the last contract entered into by himself and Beckett. It is now up to the English heavy-weight champion to say what he intends to do."

Answering this statement, Beckett has sent the following presentation of his side of the case to "Sporting Life."

"I see it stated in the press and elsewhere that I have declined to meet Moran unless I am given another £1,000 by Mr. C. B. Cochrane to do so.

"My reason for asking for the extra sum was not for the purpose of forcing Mr. Cochran's hand, but because I felt that the £2,300 offered me was insufficient considering the position I occupy as champion of Great Britain, and because, too, of the fact that the match, owing to Moran's recent success, would have been a tremendous draw.

ENTITLED TO MORE

"Naturally, I felt, as the principal figure in the contest, that I was entitled to at least a bigger sum than Moran was likely to receive, as he was fighting on a percentage basis. In addition, I was being asked to box Moran for a much smaller sum than I got for boxing Wells and Burns. Surely that was a bit unfair.

"It has been stated very frequently of late that I did not want to meet Moran. I have already proved that that statement is incorrect by offering to have a side wager on the match up to £5,000. To still further prove that I am anxious to meet Moran, I am prepared to do so for the sum originally named, viz., £2,300, for any promoter, other than Mr. Cochran, who cares to stage the match.

NOT SPORTSMANLIKE

"Almost ever since I beat Wells in my first match for Mr. Cochran there has been in certain quarters a strong desire, for some extraordinary reason that I cannot understand, to see me beaten. That is not a very sportsmanlike attitude for Englishmen to take up towards their champions, but there it is, and, naturally, I am very sore about it, and strongly resent it.

"When a boxer—and a British champion at that—gets into the ring with the conviction that a large number of spectators are hoping for his defeat, it certainly does not in any way help him to give of his best. That is what has happened more than once to me, and I earnestly hope that no other man in my position will be similarly treated, and suffer the mental agony that I have suffered in consequence."

"JOE BECKETT."

EARLY-ROUND QUALITY GOLF IS WORRISOME

Expert Says So; Tells Of Harry Vardon's Fine Ability On Links

BY ABE MITCHELL

We shall miss Ray and Vardon at Mid-Surrey, when the "News-of-the-World" finals are played; but there is the qualifying round to be considered, and it will be within the recollection of all golfers that a year ago, at Sonning, all the members of the triumvirate failed to reach the match play stage.

This qualifying round—or rounds—is not an easy matter nowadays, when so many young and good players are out to improve their reputation. Personally, I am always glad when it is over. For it is no gain to spend some days away from home and play what you consider quite good golf and then find that others have returned such fine scores that your efforts count for nothing.

HARD ON YOUNGSTERS

This is very disheartening, especially to a young player who usually plays exceedingly well at home. The ability to play well on a strange course is most important—it is one of the secrets of Vardon's success right through his long golfing career. He seems to play well wherever he goes, and whether the weather be fine or stormy, his golf retains a uniform excellence.

Vardon is a clean player, seldom taking a bit of turf unless it is absolutely necessary; and I fancy it is owing to this that he can play on any course. The player who habitually picks up the turf finds that it varies so much that at times he is sadly cheated.

Even on the tee at a short hole, Vardon takes a pinch of sand; whereas many of us put the ball on the grass and take a bit of turf with the shot.

This is not, of course, a bad practice, but there is just the danger that the tee may be soft and if perchance you do not notice this, the shot may be something of a failure.

JUDGMENT OF DISTANCE

Then, too, there is the length of each hole to be taken into account. When I was playing at

SHANGHAI RACE CLUB VOTES TO PURCHASE BIG INTEREST IN KIANGWAN ENTERPRISE

Activities On Famous Suburban Course Will Henceforth Be Influenced Largely By S.R.C.—Overwhelming Ballot Favors The Acquisition

By "Grandstand"

Public announcement has at length been made to the effect that a large and important interest in the International Recreation Club, operating the popular racetrack at Kiangwan, will shortly pass to the Shanghai Race Club, the members of which have voted almost unanimously to accept the offer of a large block of stock in the I.R.C.

While the two institutions have operated in entire harmony at all times, this projected amalgamation will be undoubtedly hailed with acclaim throughout the Settlement; signifying, as it does, the even closer weaving together of the amateur racing interests at this point.

The matter of acquisition of an influential interest in the I.R.C. has been before the Race Club for some time, it is understood; but not until the extraordinary meeting on Monday evening was the matter brought to a vote.

While opposition to the move was declared to be intense in certain circles, no sign of dissent was apparent in the meeting. The recommendation that the proffered shares be acquired was approved by an overwhelming majority.

It is not expected that many changes in the methods of conducting affairs at Kiangwan will be instituted for the present.

International Polo Dates Set For June 18, 22 And 25

The dates for the international polo match next year between America and Great Britain have been set for June 18, 22 and 25, according to an announcement made recently in London by English polo officials. The American Polo Association has agreed to the dates, according to the announcement.

The matches will be played on the famous field at Hurlingham, the scene of many international matches and the place where the British tryouts to determine the makeup of the international team were held this Summer.

The trials were finished during the last week of August. Colonel H. A. Tompkinson, Lord Dalmeny, Lord Wodehouse and Major V. N. Lockett making up the British four.

'POLLARD PLAN' DON'T WORK HERE

Some 15 or more years ago in the old Dayton Street Police Court in St. Louis, Missouri, the late Judge William Jefferson Pollard inaugurated a novel method of dealing with drunken husbands and his method, which came to be known as the "Pollard Plan" and was much written about after it had been adopted in lesser courts in many parts of the world, achieved a considerable degree of success. Napoleon I. Turenne seems to have proved in this connection that Shanghai is different from other cities of the world. U.S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl tried the plan on him and it didn't work.

When Judge Pollard convicted a delinquent husband and found that the man had dependants it was his custom to impose a stiff prison sentence and suspend it on the culprit's good behavior, exacting at the same time a pledge to abstain from intoxicants. In England, Scotland, Norway and in a number of courts in America where police judges took up the "Pollard Plan" it was reported that the percentage of lapses in which penalties had to be imposed was something less than eight percent. Seemingly, though Shanghai is different.

Napoleon Turenne was convicted on a charge of drunkenness in the U. S. Commissioner's Court on August 30 and after a sentence of 60 days had been imposed by the Commissioner it was suspended after Turenne agreed to take a pledge to abstain from liquor for the term of a year. This was done because the man had a wife and two children. And then Turenne backslid. He admitted this was so before the commissioner with the result that judgment was handed down yesterday bringing the sentence into effect.

News From Hunan

FIGHTING IN CHANGTEH

Like other Southern Provinces Hunan is not free from internal struggle. Through jealousy and party feeling, General Wang Cheng-ya, formerly Occupation Commissioner of Changli (Changteh-Liling), was killed some time ago by Ch'ing Heng, another southern general. Wang's son is now determined to take revenge. He rallied his father's troops, and made desperate attacks on Changteh, October 17 and 18. The city nearly fell when troops from the vicinity came to her rescue. They repulsed the invaders towards the district of Chi-li, where more fighting is expected. It is believed that General Ling Hsiu-mai, who fought before under General Tan Yen-kai, now leagued with Wang in his cause. He took his post as Chief Commander of Ching Kuo Chun (meaning "Troops for the Restoration of National Peace") which post, he claimed, was commissioned to him by Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

FINANCE

Although the Hunan Bank has gone out of existence, their notes are still issued by the Hunan government. These notes are in two denominations, $1 and $0.10. Their values, as fixed by the government, are 1,500 and 130 cash respectively. Besides the Hunan Bank, which is now called the Agency for New Notes, the Chamber of Commerce is also entrusted with the work of redeeming paper notes with coppers according to the fixed value. Owing to limited daily exchange and many inconveniences involved therein, paper notes are, in spite of the strict orders of the government, much depreciated in market. These notes are not accepted by foreign banks, nor are they accepted by the railway and other similar organisations. Prices on commodities are going up every day.

The Hunan government has recently removed the local tax imposed on salt. To meet the deficit, other taxes are increased. Chief among these are Likin and Land Tax. For every dollar formerly levied as Likin, there is now an increase of sixty cents; and, for every dollar levied as Land-tax, a special tax of $1.00 is attached. The latter finds opposition from all quarters, especially as it is intended for the purpose of maintaining military forces.

SELF GOVERNMENT

The cry "Hunan for the Hunanese" is growing stronger every day. A bill, signed by 436 men, proposes to call a convention for the drafting of the Provincial Constitution. The Provincial Assembly was not slow in seizing this opportunity. They took the "Constitution" into their hands, and began to work on it. But the popular feeling seems to be in their disfavor, thinking that this important task should be open to all, instead of being monopolised by a few whose former record was extremely poor and whose term as members of the Provincial Assembly has virtually expired.

This feeling finds its expression in a demonstration on the National Celebration Day, when hundreds of people, mostly students, openly defied the Provincial Assembly by tearing the flag in front of the Assembly Hall. This was considered a grave insult to the Assembly men, who complained before Governor Tan Yen-kai for justice. The good Governor, however, did not want to hurt the feelings of both sides. He made a new flag for the Assembly, and offered a personal apology for lack of proper protection.

NOTABLE VISITS

Professor and Mrs. John Dewey arrived at Changsha Monday morning, October 25. Mr. Bertrand Russell and Miss Black are expected shortly. With them will arrive Mr. Tsai Yuen-pei, Chancellor of the Government University at Peking, and nine notable scholars. They will give series of lectures on educational and social topics. They Educational Association of Changsha is making elaborate preparations for entertaining these distinguished visitors.

Deal the other day, I found that it was not always easy to judge accurately the correct distance. A London amateur who had been playing on a green course found that the bare brownish color of the turf was all against his judgment.

Still, these difficulties are all part of a professional's life. I fear that I have not Vardon's happy faculty for judging the length of a shot. In this, as in so many things, he is quite exceptional.

I hope there will be a large crowd to see the International match at Mid-Surrey. Gate money will be charged and the receipts are to go to St. Dunstans.

GLAD TO ASSIST

I need scarcely say that we who are to play are pleased to give our services for so good a cause. We who were "Out There" have not forgotten the misery and horror of it all. Personally I have much to be thankful for. I remember one occasion when it seemed as if the end of everything had come, but fortunately we escaped.

Braid, I see, has been doing great things at Walton Heath and he and Duncan are bound to make the pace hot for Taylor and myself. The match will perhaps recall the historic foursome in which Taylor and Vardon played Braid and Herd over four greens.

Taylor then drove against Braid, and I believe it was a surprise to many to see Taylor almost holding his own in length off the tee. Nowadays I fancy that everyone is hitting the ball harder and faster; but length, unless it be accurate, is not the tremendous advantage so many think; though of course there are holes which are made easy by a really long shot from the tee.

Chinese And Foreigners Unite In Hankow To Aid Famine Sufferers Of North

Relief Bodies Pool Efforts, Forming International Committee; Associated Christian Missions Will Hold Fair To Raise Funds

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, October 26.—Various Chinese and foreign organisations in Hankow have been working very hard in raising relief funds in aid of the famine-stricken areas in the northern part of China, since a communication was received by the Hankow Chinese Chamber of Commerce from the Tientsin Chamber of Commerce and a telegram from Mr. Liang Shih-yi at Peking, calling for action in this center toward famine relief work.

In response to this call from the North, the first effort made by Chinese merchants in Hankow was the organisation of a Hua Pei Chiu Zai Hui (North China Famine Relief Association). The chief promotors of this union are a group of prominent Chinese engaged in business in Hankow headed by Mr. Chiang Pui-ling, compradore of Messrs. Arnhold Brothers and Company, of Hankow. Nearly all the important businessmen in Hankow were gathered in forming the association for the purpose of making united and organised efforts at raising relief funds from Hankow.

ORGANISATIONS UNITE

The above organisation was the first formed in Hankow along this line. Contribution booklets have been printed and distributed by them to various Chinese leaders to make collections from among the Chinese population of this city. Again when it was first formed it consisted of only the merchant class. But subsequently other minor relief organisations arose from different circles in Hankow. These latter bodies all joined the Hua Pei Chiu Zai Hui as members in order to take united action and have their relief work done more efficiently and orderly. So at present this organisation, now housed in the Chinese Merchants Club of Hankow in the British Concession, is a conglomeration of most if not all famine relief bodies in Hankow.

At a recent meeting, members of this body decided to hold a special famine relief benefit in the New World, the largest Chinese amusement house in town. The affair will last three days. And in order to make the benefit a success, they are enlisting the help of various other bodies, as the Chinese Red Cross Chapter of Hankow and the Street Unions of Hankow. It is expected that a large sum will be raised from this affair, and as soon as arrangements are made with the managers of the New World the date will be fixed for the affair.

INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS

Besides other activities, the Hua Pei Relief Association once also sent several delegates from Hankow to the famished districts in the northern part of China to see for themselves the actual conditions existing in those places and to gather first-hand information about the relief that is being done over there. On their return to Hankow, they submitted satisfactory reports on what they saw in the North. These reports served as an impetus to the famine relief workers in Hankow, helping them to see the immediate necessity of taking action without delay if millions of Chinese are to be saved from starving to death.

The Chinese Red Cross of Hankow, however, is no less active in this movement. When the call for action in this direction came here from the North, they were then engaged in getting funds for relief in Yochow, a district in Hunan devastated by a recent struggle between General Tan Yen-kai of Hunan and General Chang Ching-yao of the Anfu Club. So they could not immediately turn their attention from Yochow to North China. But as soon as they were relieved, they began their work in this direction by sending delegates to the North to gather information about the existing conditions.

REPORTS TO RED CROSS

Several reports have been received by the Chinese Red Cross in Hankow this week from their delegates who are now in Peking. In the report it was stated that the people there in the North are facing disaster, and unless immediate relief comes from other parts of the country, they are doomed to die either by starvation or by the inclemencies of weather.

Another force in the famine relief movement in Hankow is the foreign and Chinese Christians who are taking action to help the famished population of the northern provinces. This body, consisting of foreign and Chinese missionaries representing the various missions here, is at least a very useful unit in the movement.

MISSIONARIES UNITE

The movement of the foreign missionaries was launched at the October prayer meeting of the American Church Mission held at the St. Paul's Cathedral, Hankow. At this meeting the question of the Chinese famine sufferers in the northern provinces was presented, and a collection was taken at the meeting to be forwarded to the Reverend Murdock McKenzie of the Canadian Presbyterian Church at Changteh, Honan, where the suffering is reported to be very acute. Approximately $131 was received and was forwarded north on October 7 by the Reverend J. Wallace Wilson of the London Mission.

The consensus of opinion at this meeting was that although the missionaries are all supporting some special organisation either in their own church or in the community at large, any work done by them in a body will not only serve to relieve some suffering immediately, but may set an example to others to get their funds out on the field accomplishing actual relief work as soon as possible.

For this reason, a relief committee was appointed by the missionary prayer meeting for the purpose of continuing solicitation of the missionaries in the Wuhan cities and to offer the assistance of the missionary body to the existing Chinese and foreign relief committees and do whatever work in the line of publicity or other work that will further the cause of immediate help. The committee appointed consists of: S. H. Littel, American Church Mission; J. Wallace Wilson, London Mission; George Miles, Wesleyan Mission; Arthur Bonsey, Griffth John College; and A. M. Guttery, General Secretary of the Wuhan Chinese Y.M.C.A.

PLAN BENEFIT AT 'Y'

Besides the work of the foreign missionaries in Hankow, still another movement was launched, not by missionaries, but by Christians, both Chinese and foreign. The fire needed to start this Christian movement was kindled by the Hankow Y.M.C.A. last month, when at the call of Dr. S. T. Kong, Mining Engineer and Chairman of the Board of Managers of the Hankow Y.M.C.A., and Mr. T. K. Hu, Executive Secretary of the same association, an initial meeting was held at the Educational Department of the Hankow Y.M.C.A. to consider this work. Nearly all the leading Chinese and foreign missionaries and Christians were invited to attend this meeting, and those present at this initial meeting were: A. M. Guttery, T. K. Hu, S. T. Kong W. P. Mills, W. C. Jordan, Mrs. Lucy Chen and Peter S. Jowe, of the Y.M.C.A.; Paul Maslin, S. H. Littel, Hu Lan-ting and Liu Fan-hou, of the American Church Mission; J. Wallace Wilson, Rev. Kung and Mrs. Chiu, of the London Mission; and Dr. Grace Yoh.

The result of this first meeting was that the Y.M.C.A. should be appointed to do this work representing the Christian community of Hankow. Accordingly an Executive Committee was named consisting of A. M. Guttery, S. T. Kong and T. K. Hu. This executive committee was asked to proceed with the work without delay, and formulate definite plans for holding a big famine relief fair or bazaar in the Y.M.C.A. building in order to recruit funds for immediate relief work in North China.

BIG FIRMS HELP

After several meetings the executive committee decided to hold a fair under the joint auspices of the associated Christian missions of Hankow and not in connection with similar work now being done by other benevolent bodies of Hankow. The Christian Famine Relief Committee was then formed with Mr. Lao Yung-hung, Compradore of Reiss and Company, as Chairman, and Dr. S. T. Kong as vice Chairman. The date for the fair was fixed at November 19-20, and the following sub-committees were named to take up definite parts of the movement: Drama, Lee Shao-tsai; Music, Miss Venetia Cox; Games, H. D. Hao; Bazaar, Lao Yung-hung and Miss Clark; Program, W. P. Mills, and Publicity, Peter S. Jowe.

At present the plans for the fair are well under way and the different sub-committees are busy arranging for the event. It is expected that the fair will be carried out on a grand scale. Efforts are being made to induce foreign and Chinese companies to set up booths in the fair ground to sell their products for the relief funds. Already many Chinese firms have promised to help the relief fund by opening booths: the Commercial Press, the Chun Hua Book Company and some curio dealers are about to send their contributions to the Committee.

The Industrial and Commercial Bank, a Chinese bank managed along rigidly modern lines, has donated $100 to the committee to cover the initial expenses. Again, through the generosity of four big advertisers, Whiteaway Laidlaw, the British-American Tobacco Company, the Hankow Dispensary and Anderson, Meyer and Company, large advertising spaces have been secured in both the English and Chinese press of Hankow for publicity work. The Pacific Trading Company have offered to set up the booths and other outfit in the fair ground. Another most useful group is the girl students body of the American Church Mission schools who are now busily engaged in making needle work and in their music program. So it appears that this relief drive by Christians has ample prospects of success.

FOREIGNERS ACTIVE

The foreign community of Hankow, too, is active in the relief movement. A meeting was called at the Victoria Hall on October 15 by Mr. Cecil C. A. Kirke, Acting Consul-General for Great Britain in Hankow. The meeting was attended by a large audience representing various nationalities. Mr. Kirke opened the meeting by stating that the meeting had been called simply to consider ways and means for raising funds in aid of the present efforts at relief. He said he was sure that everyone in Hankow would contribute to this good cause if they were certain that the funds would be administered with discretion and faithfulness. Mr. Geary Gardner, Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation of Hankow, proposed that as on former occasions an International Committee should be elected to collect subscriptions and superintend their disposal. Mr. Gardner said that the situation was very bad indeed and that he thought the best plan would be for Hankow to take charge of some definite fields and concentrate on them. He farther said that he had been in correspondence with several missionaries south of the Yellow River and in Shansi and was waiting for their reports and when these come the funds the workers required could be forwarded.

NAME COMMITTEE

Mr. J. C. Huston, American Vice-Consul in charge of the American Consulate General at Hankow, seconded the motion for electing an International Relief Committee of Hankow, and the following gentlemen were elected to represent the various nationalities: Mr. Lloyd E. Gale, Manager of the American Trading Company; for America; Messrs. Gardner and Cannan for Britain; M. Railleau, for Belgium; M. de Broc, Manager of the Banque de L'Indo-Chine, for France; Mr. Moro, of the Italian Import and Export Co., for Italy; Mr. Rasmussen for Denmark; Mr. Yamazaki for Japan; and Mr. J. Stienberg, Deputy Customs Commissioner of Hankow, for Russia.

Another motion was made at this meeting that the Committee should make representations in the proper quarter to the Chinese government requesting the latter to hand over part of the money to be raised by special relief levies, on railways, postages, and other government work, to be used by foreigners for famine relief purposes. This idea was shared by all present unanimously.

FREEMANS ARE GUESTS OF HONOR AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Particularly interesting addresses on the subjects of the Foreign Women's Home and the work in China of the Y.W.C.A. were outstanding features of yesterday afternoon's meeting of the American Woman's Club which was held at the Carlton Cafe. Guests of honor at the meeting were Dr. Luther Freeman, the new pastor of the Community Church, and Mrs. Freeman, both of whom spoke.

The meeting was held under the direction of the Social Service Department of the club which is headed by Mrs. James MacDonnell as chairman. Following the tea hour Mrs. C. S. Lobingier, President of the Club, extended a greeting on behalf of the organisation to Doctor and Mrs. Luther Freeman and both responded and expressed the pleasure they said they felt at the welcome that has been accorded to them by the American community since their arrival in Shanghai.

SPEAKS ON WOMEN'S HOME

The subject of the Foreign Women's Home was dealt with by Mrs. C. F. Remer and Mrs. Donald MacGillivray who told something of the history of the institution and the important part it has been playing in the social life of the city. It was explained that the home takes the place of a number of charitable organisations in that it affords a refuge for those faced by temporary difficulties, a home for unmarried mothers, for feeble minded, for aged dependants, for children and also is a rescue home.

It was pointed out that the institution recently moved into larger quarters enlarging the scope of the work being done and present needs to keep on with the work were explained in detail.

Probably the Y.W.C.A. could have enlisted no better spokeswoman in its present campaign to raise funds for the coming year's work than Miss Grace Yang who addressed the meeting, telling of the work being done in China by the association she represents. Miss Yang is a representative of the student department of the National Committee of the Y.W.C.A. and is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College for women of Massachusetts.

Y.W.C.A. IN CHINA

Miss Yang held the close interest of her hearers in the course of her talk telling with a wealth of detail about what the achievements of Y.W.C.A. in China had been. In closing she gave thanks to those present for much aid that has been rendered in the work in which she is enrolled and at the same time pointed out the importance of continuing and enlarging it.

The tea hostesses for the day were Mrs. James Macbeth and Mrs. Julius Rosenfeld assisted by Mrs. Badisman, Mrs. Cavanagh, Mrs. Crofoot, Miss Coppock, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Bosworth, Mrs. Corkery, Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Dollar, Miss Davis, Mrs. Dow and the Misses Davis.

American Woman's Club Notes

The first regular meeting of the Mothers' Department of the American Woman's Club is to be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Carlton Cafe. Mrs. F. Rawlinson will open a discussion on the subject, "A Child's Questions," and the subject of "Book Reviews" will be dealt with by Mrs. J. Gieldart and Mrs. L. H. Hall.

A meeting of the Social Service Department of the Club will be held at the Carlton Cafe at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning. Another meeting of this department is to be held at 10:30 o'clock the morning of Friday November 5 at the home of Mrs. James MacDonnell, 16 Rue Chapsal, when a program for the coming year will be discussed.

The next regular meeting of the Literary Department of the Club will be held at 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of November 12 at the Royal Asiatic Society's lecture hall. Mr. A. Q. Adamson will show lantern slides of the Imperial Palaces at Peking and the general subject of the meeting will be 'Chinese Architecture.'

Serious Condition Is Seen In Russia

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 30.—While news from Russia is being accepted with great reserve, yet the ever-growing reports of the seriousness of the situation indicate that a climax may be approaching as the result of the martial law in Moscow and the mobilisation of all communists the object of which is not yet known.

The Food Commissary at Moscow has announced that the peasants in eleven governments are in revolt owing to the requisitions of corn.

It is stated that among those who have recently been arrested is General Brussiloff.

Produce More Coal, Stinnes Urges Germans

Seeckt, commander of the Reichswehr, for their reactionary, anti-socialist tendencies, and invited the Moderate Independents to join the Social Democrat Party, but rejected the special laws against Radicals.

CHARGES REPUDIATED

The Minister of Defense, Herr Gessler, sharply repudiated Herr Scheidemann's charges, pointing out that demobilisation was quickly progressing, notwithstanding the enormous difficulties.

Count Westarp, leader of the German Nationalists, strongly defended the officers against Herr Scheidemann's attacks. He denounced the dismemberment of Russia through the granting of autonomy to Upper Silesia and to other provinces, and finally declared that the German National Party could not work together with the Social Democrats.

Many newspapers are of the opinion that most of the speeches, specially Herr Scheidemann's, were electioneering maneuvers. The debate in the Reichstag continued today, when the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Dr. von Simons, addressed the House. He said he was of the same opinion as Count Westarp, that the Entente had not kept its promises of November 8, 1918, and that the confession of guilt wrung from Germany could never be considered legally binding, but he disagreed with Count Westarp when he claimed that the whole treaty was surreptiously obtained.

MUST OBEY TREATY

The German Government, said Dr. von Simons, had signed the treaty, a majority of the National Assembly agreeing before the threats of adversaries became facts. Consequently, Germany was obliged to acknowledge it as an international liability and to carry it out as far as possible. If the German people erroneously believed that the Versailles Treaty need not be taken seriously, they must now perceive their error. If Germany did not prove, by honestly carrying out her obligations as far as possible, that the treaty was impossible, she had no other alternative but to appeal to force, which meant another war, while the measures proposed by the Government would bring another peace.

SEEK UNDERSTANDING

"We desire, in spite of all difficulties, finally to come to an understanding with the Entente," Dr. von Simons declared. But the Government was thereby not rid of its obligations to repulse all measures of force used or threatened against Germany beyond the peace treaty, pursued the Minister. All destruction of war and industrial material for which the peace treaty did not offer a legal basis belonged to the category of measures of force. It could not be permitted that the Entente Commission should consider certain material as being liable to destruction and destroy it themselves, as they had done in various university towns with valuable optical instruments, claiming them to be war material.

WAITING ATTITUDE

These measures of force also included the destruction of Diesel motors. The attention of the Ambassadors' Conference would be called to the economic consequences of such destruction. The report that the Inter-Allied Commission had withdrawn the demand for the destruction of the Diesel motors was incorrect. They had only stated they would not prevent new construction.

Dr. von Simons then referred to Great Britain's abandonment of the right to seize German property, and expressed the hope that similar agreement might be concluded with other Entente countries. After reporting on the Brussels Conference, the Minister declared that the Government maintained a waiting attitude regarding Geneva.

The Other France

(From The Nation)

THERE are two Frances, as there are two Englands, and two Italys, and two Germanys—at least two. The France that speaks officially in the name of the French people today—the France of Millerand and Gouraud and Weygand and Foch, the France of bemedaled generals, and bespangled oratory, and bemuddled dreams of Napoleonic empire, the France of the Tsar's bond issue and the Comité des Forges—that France has become the inheritor of the Prussian mantle. It is the hearthstone of reaction in Europe today, the nursery of counter-revolutionary conspiracies among exiled dukes and financiers, the hope of the Hungarian dictator Horthy, of the Cossack bandit-chief Wrangel, and of the Polish imperialist Dmowski; the great obstacle to European reconstruction.

That France is not the France which made the word "France" an inspiration, a symbol of high idealism, of intellectual achievement, of generous emotion, in past years. The war hushed the voice of the other France, though without silencing it; and the psychology of sudden, overwhelming victory, following years of depression and invasion, and the weary after-war spirit of "je-m'en-fichisme," drowned it beneath the cacophonies of guns and drums. But Romain Rolland never abandoned his vision across and above the battle; Henri Barbusse wrote the great human epic of the war; lesser voices of no mean caliber have spoken bravely and well—Georges Duhamel, Leon Werth, Jules Romains, Marcie Martinet, and others. In these latter years Anatole France, who more truly than Clemenceau deserves the title of the grand old man of France, has re-expressed the spirit of an elder and a finer France.

Anatole France, for all the serene detachment of his Epicurean garden at Tours, dreads the ruin which the bemedaled France has wrought his country and Europe. "I am sad," he tells an interviewer. "The future of Europe is black. The only hope is internationalism, but the war has left nationalism triumphant." And in l'Humanite he writes pathetically:

"It is appalling to regard the position of France as she was during the war and as she is today. A hundred peoples, at the call of France, came together from the ends of the earth, to 'destroy' Germany. What have we done with our Allies? What has become of our friendships? Not one is left. We have worn them all out by our proud and moody ways, by that bellicose ardor which has so surprisingly survived the long and cruel war. First America suffered our sarcasms when she brought to us a political conception different from our own—and nothing of which survives in the treaties. Then we quarreled sharply with our Latin sister. Then we alienated the states of the East. Then, exasperated by our great financial embarrassments and by the difficulty of applying an ill-made treaty, we got ourselves into more disagreements with England than the public has ever known. I do not judge the conduct of our Allies and do not bind myself to approve it. I only note that the policy of the capitalists, soldiers, and diplomats who govern us was neither adroit nor successful.

"Our position was difficult. The recognition of Wrangel now renders it terrible. Here we are, alone at last. For after this diplomatic coup d'etat, what remains of the Franco-British Entente? We are alone. . . .

"To what new dangers and unknown disasters will this course lead to which our retrograde Parliament and its reactionary government have condemned us? Are we being led into a new war with Soviet Russia? Our fears are greater because peace is not defended in France as it is in England by a working class able to make its voice heard in the councils of Empire. Labor has no influence upon our Government. And yet to assure the threatened peace, the peace which capitalists and soldiers fight and weary ignorant bourgeois betray, we can count only on the working class.

"Today the working class holds in its hands the salvation of France, the salvation of Europe, the salvation of the world. The situation is terrible. With profound emotion, in a voice weakened by age but deepened by passion for the public good, I cry, Frenchmen, save the peace of the world.

Anatole France's appeal goes almost unheard. The shrill, revengeful voices of Tardieu, Loucheur, and Poincare dominate the French councils of state. Millerand has even abandoned the policy adopted at Spa of discussing reparation problems with German experts, and reverted to the policy of dictation—aided and abetted by our own State Department. Perhaps for a time we must abandon hope of finding in the political expression of France the things which have made "France" a name to conjure with. Millerand's France we must combat; but let us not forget that there is and always will be another, vastly different, nobler, more beautiful France.

Women Magistrates

A list of the first women Magistrates for England, Scotland and Wales, appointed by the Lord Chancellor, with the aid of a committee consisting also solely of women, is published in The London Daily Telegraph.

Following is part of the report made by the committee, which included the Marchioness of Crewe, Chairman; the Marchioness of Londonderry, the Marchioness of Salisbury, Mrs. Lloyd George, Miss Elizabeth Haldane, Miss Gertrude Tuckwell, Miss Violet Markham (Mrs. Carruthers) and Mrs. Sidney Webb:

"We beg respectfully to submit to you the first list of women who are, in our opinion, qualified for the office of Justice of the Peace in England, Scotland and Wales. In preparing this list it has been our endeavor to secure the representation of various activities and of different types of experience throughout the country, including the names of some women who have achieved general distinction in medicine, education and letters.

"These women, who have been selected for appointment by our common consent, have all rendered themselves conspicuous by distinguished public service, and will, we believe, maintain the high standard and prestige of the Bench.

"In response to a request from the Secretary of State that a certain number of women should be appointed to the Visiting Committees of the prisons at Holloway, Durham, Leeds and Birmingham, we have recommended the appointment of a greater number of women Magistrates in these areas."

The list for England, over 170 in number, includes the following names, taken at random: the Duchess of Portland, the Marchioness Camden, Countess of Sandwich, the Countess of Selborne, the Hon. Mrs. Dunne, Lady Suffield, Viscountess Harcourt, G. B. E., Mrs. Ogilvie Gordon, D. Phil., F. L. S., F. G. S., the Duchess of Northumberland, C. B. E., Viscountess Allendale, Countess of Radnor, Lady Catherine Milnes-Gaskell, Miss Louisa Martindale, M. D., B. S. (Ldn.), the Hon. Lady Wood, the Duchess of Devonshire, Lady Ilchester, Lady Anne Lambton, Mrs. W. Moore, LL. A., Miss J. Harrison, LL. D., Lady Ampthill, C. I., G. B. E., Lady Newton, Lady Chance, Lady Shakerly, Lady Sykes.

The list of women Magistrates for Scotland, forty-two in number, includes the Marchioness of Aberdeen, the Marchioness of Breadalbane, the Countess of Mar and Kellie, the Duchess of Montrose, Lady Helen Munro-Ferguson, Miss Alice Balfour, the Duchess of Atholl, the Countess of Minto, and Lady Murray of Elibank.

The list for Wales, twenty-one in number, includes Viscountess Rhondda, Lady Howard (ex-Mayor of Llanelly) and Lady Cory.

HON. T. R. JERNIGAN

"He made an enviable reputation as a citizen, a public official, an author and a member of the Bar."—China Press.

God gave us a man. Some one to teach
He lent us; but in His time
His powerful arm did outward reach
And took His man to a higher clime.

Here was a scholar, rich in the lore
Of ancient, and modern age,
Mantle of ruler too he bore—
Consul, citizen and sage.

A sportsman, powerful in the game
Of Life. A true American.
Through years of labor he won fame—
Jernigan, honored gentleman.

"Men fear death, as children fear to go in the dark; and as that natural fear in children is increased with tales, so is the other.

"It is as natural to die as to be born; he that dies in an earnest pursuit is like one that is wounded in hot blood; who for the time scarcely feels the hurt; but, above all, believe it, the sweetest canticle is Nunc dimittis, when a man hath obtained worthy ends and expectations. Death hath this also, that it openeth the gate to good fame."—Francis Bacon.

"I am not in the habit of grudging other people their good things, but I wish I had written those lines." So said the poet Wordsworth on reading the concluding stanza of a poem by Mrs. Letitia Barbauld. Here it is:

Life! We've been long together,
Through pleasant and through stormy weather;
'Tis hard to part when friends are dear;
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning,
Choose thine own time;
Say not good night, but in some brighter clime
Bid me good morning.

GOODBYE

At the graveyard in which the body of an old friend lay, a horseman stopped and dismounted to say "Goodbye." In the singing of the birds he heard his friend answer "Goodbye." (From an old Chinese legend.)

"Goodbye, old friend."
Thou canst not say goodbye to me
for thou art dead,
But I am going far away,
And so I stop my steed to say
"Goodbye, old friend."
Goodbye, old friend
For thou art very dear to me
Though thou art dead.
And if thy lips no more can say
"Goodbye,"
The grave-yard birds do sing the lay—

"Goodbye, old friend."

RUSKIN AND COAL MINES

Suppose you had each, at the back of your houses a garden, large enough for your children to play, with just as much lawn as would give them room enough run,—no more—and that you could not change your abode; but that, if you chose, you could double your income, or quadruple it by digging a coal shaft in the middle of the lawn, and turning the flower—beds into heaps of coke. Would you do it? I hope not. I can tell you, you would be wrong if you did, though it gave you income sixty-fold instead of four-fold.

Yet this is what you are doing with all England. The whole country is but a little garden, not more than enough for your children to run on the lawns of, if you would let them all run there. And this little garden you will turn into furnace ground, and fill with heaps of cinders, and those children of yours, not you, will suffer for it.

"Of Queens' Gardens."

Step By Step

"Is Mr. Hansen courting you, Alice?" her chum Doris asked her one day.

"Not exactly—yet," admitted Alice. "But he is approaching step by step."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, when he first called he sat all the evening with a post-card album in his lap."

"Yes."

"Next time he sat with my poodle in his lap."

"Well?"

"Last night he took my little brother on his knee. So, you see, I hope it will soon be my turn."

The World Is Yours—Dr. Luther Freeman

THE WEALTH OF A GOOD MAN

Every good man is wealthy. That is very different from saying that every good man is rich. Riches relate to the possession of certain commodities that may or may not be wealth. Wealth means "weal." The man who has wealth has possessions that are good, and that help to make life good. The good man is characterised by this. The good man, therefore, is always wealthy.

In these verses, the 21, 22 and 23 of the third chapter of First Corinthians,—Paul puts this truth in a very interesting way. He declares "All things are yours," and then he goes on to enumerate the wealth of all good men under certain broad classifications, that we cannot do better than to study for a few minutes.

1. "All things are yours whether Paul, Apollo or Cephas." That is to say: All religious teachers. Like some other Churches, which I have heard, there seems to have been a little division among these good Corinthians in their loyalty to particular religious teachers. Paul, Apollos, Cephas each had their followers in the local Church, and perhaps these partisans were not always as gracious as they should have been to one another. Paul was the Apostle of Freedom. Apollo was the exponent of Eloquence. Cephas was the embodiment of Feeling. Each of these characteristics drew to them certain individuals, and made, evidently, a little rift in the harmony of the primitive Church. Now Paul says, This is belittling for all of these men belong to all. You are not to be bound to either one of them, or to be yourself narrowed by a loyalty to any one of the three. All are yours."

CHRISTIANITY SEEKS TRUTH

This recognised the broad principle that all religious teachers may belong to every good man. Christianity seeks the truth wherever it can find it. One of John Wesley's followers came to him, and said "I am the reader of but one book." John Wesley was wise enough to rebuke him right soundly, and to tell him that if he did not read more than one book, he could not read that intelligently, and that if he could not have a broader idea of things than that, he would have to leave the Ministry. It reminds one of the reply made by the Chinese when the early missionaries suggested teaching them English. They said, "No, if what you bring is good it is contained in the writings of Confucious, we have it already; and if it is not in Confucious, we do not want it."

"The Protestant can read the Roman Catholic to his profit, and the Roman Catholic can read the Protestant. None of us have all the truth, and there is a very distinct advantage in coming at the truth from different viewpoints. All schools of thought have been losers by forgetting this and imagining that one particular schools, has all the truth. We have an excellent illustration of this in the antagonism that has run down through the centuries between Science and Theology. I have to admit, with shame, that practically all the movements toward larger and more intelligent interpretations of the universe about us, have been bitterly opposed by good, but misguided men, in the name of religion. The scientists have had to fight their way. Men have not been willing to recognise the truth, or acknowledge the facts if they seemed to disagree with certain accepted theological opinions. The list of those who have been denounced as infidels and atheists, includes most of the really great men of science, the bravest scholars, inventors and philanthropists.

THEOLOGY VS. SCIENCE

The purest Christian life, the noblest Christian character has not availed to shield the combatants. Christians like Newton, Pascal, Socke Milton and even Fenalon, and Howard, have had this weapon hurled against them. Of all proofs of the existence of a God, those of Descartes have been wrought most thoroughly into the minds of modern men. Yet the Protestant theologians of Holland thought to bring him to torture and to death on the charge of atheism, and the Roman Catholic theologians of France, thwarted him during his life, and prevented due honor to him after his death.

In his introduction to his work on, "The warfare of Science with Theology," Dr. White suggests this thesis:—"In all modern history interference with science in the supposed interests of religion, no matter how conscientious such interference may have been, has resulted in the direct evils both to religion and to science, and invariably; and, on the other hand, all untrammeled scientific investigation, no matter how dangerous to religion some of its stages may have seemed for the time to be, has invariably resulted in the highest good both of religion and of science." Two hundred and fifty years ago we were burning men and women because they were charged with being wicked; but we did not stop burning them on account of our theology. We stopped at the command of science. We owe a very great debt to science, and we ought to recognise it.

There have been periods in the history of the Church, when the great world of literature was discounted, if not displised. We have come to see that the greatest teacher may be the novel, the play, the poem. All things are yours; all forms of literature; every form of the expression of human aspiration and ideals, is yours, as a Christian man, to use for your larger self realisation.

'WORLD IS YOURS'

"The world is yours." You are to take and use the world for your own good and for the good of humanity. This world is God's world. This world belongs to us as God's children. Now that would have been counted high heresy in medialval thought. Men interpreted the command "Love not the world" as making it obligatory for men, in order to be holy, to get away from the world, out of touch with it. We differently. Our business is not to select certain things out of the world and tag them as holy and other things as unholy, but it is our business to so touch all the forces of Society as to sanctify them, and bring them into service to Him who is the Owner and Master of all things.

This is God's world; it is not the Devil's world. There is no world that will ever be more God's world than this is. That is not saying that everything in the world is pleasing to God. Let us understand that Satan has no place here. He is represented in the early chapters of Genesis as an intruder. He is an intruder every where. He had nothing to do with the making of this world. He has never painted one of these glorious sunsets, or rolled out these great prairies, the granaries of the world. He has not poured out one of these mighty rivers, floating the argosies of the nations. It is not by his command that the ocean beats its Hallelujah Chorus against the granite crags. This is God's world, and as God's world it belongs to God's children; every inch of it. It is our business then to take it, and controll it and master it.

NOT TO KILL AMBITION

We are not here to kill ambition but to direct it. We do not want to clip the wings of imagination, we want to sanctify the imagination. If we cannot take the wealth of the world, and master it and turn it into high uses, then Christianity is a failure. All painting, architecture, music and literature belongs to the Christian. The world of amusement belongs to the Christian. Society belongs to the Christian man. Business, politics, all this is his; it does not belong to any body else, and it ought to be taken possession of by the Christian man, and so used as to make this a better world for men and women to live in.

"Life is yours." Religious teachers, the world, life, is yours. Then we are not to look upon life as a probation. The old question used to be asked by some of our ancient friends, "Why should man be permitted to stay in this world after he is converted? Is he not then ready to go to heaven? What is the use of his staying here?

One purpose of this life is, undoubtedly, to get a man converted, adjusted to high spiritual ideals, so that he may go to the larger life, heaven. I am quite in sympathy with the biographer, who began the life of his hero with his conversion. When he was asked why he had told nothing about his birth, childhood, early training, education, etc., and began at his conversion, in early manhood, the biographer replied," A man does not really begin to live until he has found God; and therefore, there is nothing worth while to be said concerning him until that time."

'HERE TO GROW'

But that is, after all, only one side of the fact; and life is not simply for that. Life is to live in. Life is to be thought of reverently. It is not simply to prepare for living by and by. Life is to grow in, not simply in a moment, to be adjusted to the will of God, by the surrender of our will be his purpose. That surrender is to be looked upon as the beginning of a new life that shall be developed in, and through the soul. We are here to grow. We are here to make ourselves bigger, larger, broader; so we shall do well if every day we get in touch with some great master thinker through literature. If we see some beautiful sight and think of its beauty and let it transform our soul into a larger beauty, by serving and helping our fellow men. We are also here to love, to learn what it means to really love men. There is danger that with our comforts and prosperity, we shall forget the struggles the passions, the aches, the pain, the woe, the grief of humanity about us. We are here to lift. Men about us need our arms underneath them. The weaker they are and the more contemptable, the more they need us.

SPEAKS OF PRISONERS

One afternoon I spoke to 500 prisoners. It is a most pathetic sight. I can never look into their faces without feeling crushed under the weight of their sins, and their hopelessness. The awful thing is not that they have sinned in the past, and that they are there in disgrace. The awful fact is that most of them are doomed to go out into lives of larger crime, that there is so little possibility of anything nobler or better under our system of punishment.

We are here to see life in a larger way, and to recognise God as speaking in every form of human achievements. Sometimes God finds his way into humanity by one route and sometimes by another. But, where ever there is noble life, we may konw that there is the incoming of God. Sometimes, God has found his way into humanity through form, and then the divine life appears in glorious architecture, immortal sculpture, and we have an Angelo. Or it may be that the brooding spirit finds an avenue through the imagination, and then we have poetry, or music, with a Tennyson, a Browning, a Mozart, a Beethovan. Or sometimes the over brooding God finds expression in color, and we get a Reubens, a Titian or a Donatello. Or it may be that he breathes through the soul of man and expresses himself in mighty eloquence, and then we have an O'Connel, a Beecher or a Webster. But where ever there is life where eve there is force, high ideal and noble movemnt, there is the life of God. Life is yours. All life in its bigness and power belongs to you as the children of the most high.

THE CHRISTIAN DEATH

"Death is yours." And now you think I have a pretty difficult task to make anything attractive out of death. To say that Death belongs to the Christian, does not seem to be a message of very great encouragement. But is it not the very highest message after all. It is indeed true that death belongs to the Christian. I do not wonder that death frightened men in the past and I do not wonder that death frightened men today, if they have not the Christian vision. It is horrible to see our friends slip away from us; to see the hand lose its warmite, the eye its expression, and to find the tongue palsied, and then see corruption creep over the beautiful form, until we are compelled to put it out of our sight. I do not wonder that men have called this a great enemy.

The Greek, with all his philosophical insight, could do nothing better than to say that death is a blind and unreasoning fate, and one could only wait and accept its coming patiently. To the Jew, death was only a deep, black, hopeless pit, where there is no service. "For there is no work nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest." Eccles. 9-10. Buddha could only say of death that it was a final swoon, consciousness lost, soul swallowed up in the over soul. Jesus came saying, death is a door and it opens into life. It is emancipation. It is a mansion. I go to prepare a place and I come again to receive you unto myself.

With Him there is no note of sadness or despair. He does not talk about death as a great enemy for death is not an enemy. It is a friend to the Christian. Death is our black bond slave. When the journey of life is complete we pass the dusty robe and worn sandals, of our pilgrimage over to Death, the black servitor, who brings us the garments of light and life, that we may be clothed on with immortality. We have passed through the gates into the land where there is no night, and where we shall see the King in his beauty. "Death is yours."

No man here need ever talk of think about poverty again. We are not poor. We are the sons of God. All things are yours. Whether Paul, Apollo or Cephas or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come. All that is of value now, all that ever shall be of value in any world, that is yours. Enter into the great rich heritage that is yours. Let every tear be dried, let every woe and fear and every sorrow be banished. All things are yours, because you belong to Christ, and Christ is God's.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

The Bolshevist Marat—By J. H. Rosny-Aine

(Translated by William L. McPherson)

"During the war," said the sculptor Peter Vladimirich, "I frequented for a time the little Savinoff restaurant, whose habitues were a sorry-looking lot. But things were not going well with me. My patrons had either left Petrograd or lost their interest in art. Rubles and kopecks were scarce.

"The Savinoff restaurant was a picturesque place, however, full of half-lights, like Rembrandts, and its customers gave me an inspiration for more than one bas-relief, from which I expected to make a little money and reputation if art ever came back to its own.

"Among the regulars there was a hideous man in the forties, whose beard grew luxuriantly on the right side of his face, but was very scanty on the left side. This jaundiced fellow, with a visage like a frog's, a distended mouth and eyes of verdigris, refrained for a long time from speaking to me. I am a silent man, and also a little deaf, and since my interest is chiefly in what I see, I don't talk much.

• • •

"Finally this strange-looked creature decided to break the ice. He made advances to me and gradually confided to me his impressions and thoughts. He had some frightful doctrines, which didn't repel me, however, since I am rather indifferent to ideas, and am, in the bargain, a fatalist. He said that the world was rotten to the core and that it would have to be revolutionised from top to bottom.

"'What is this war?' he grumbled. 'Only child's play. The social war will be far bloodier. We must suppress millions and millions of parasites.'

"Once they are intoxicated with phrases my countrymen usually go the limit. I have met many of them who wanted to destroy everything and who have never even killed a hare.

"I listened benevolently, watching meanwhile the picturesque vagabonds who gathered in the cavern-like room. Now and then I nodded my head or murmured:

"'It's astonishing! What a head you have, little father! There's a whole world of ideas in it!'

"I had touched his weak spot. Though professing to serve humanity, he was all swelled up with pride and vanity. Moreover, I thus avoided discussion, which I abominate.

• • •

"In 1907 I changed my residence and also my restaurant. I no longer saw this jaundiced philosopher.

"Then the revolution broke. Kerensky was supplanted by Lenin. The Bolsheviki seized power and the reign of terror began. There was nothing to do. All those who rebelled were either killed or were forced to hide or to go into exile. The Red Terrorists shot men down like rabbits; they drowned officers in the Neva like kittens. I realised that it was necessary to wait for a reaction to sanity—and I waited.

"That was hard. Provisions were scarce. I spent my days hunting for a crust of bread or a herring. I thought that at least I was safe on the score of politics. I have never mixed in politics. It disgusts me. I have no faith in men. I am sure that, whatever they do, they will established a regime of injustice, deceit, hatred and wickedness.

"But holding everybody at a polite distance, accepting inevitable disappointments and never disputing anybody else's opinion, I lived almost tranquilly. I counted on getting along all right, if only bread and herrings became more plentiful.

"But I deceived myself. Quite unintentionally I happened to offend a revolutionary dvornik, who denounced me, along with other suspects. The process didn't drag. Three Red Guards, who looked like Kalmuks and jailbirds, came to arrest me.

"As this was at a time when many people were being shot, the jurisdictions of the tribunals were vague. There was a court in my quarter, presided over by a certain Govlov, nicknamed 'the Bolshevist Marat.' He held sway in a big building which the people called the House of Blood. The Red Guards took me there. With thirty other prisoners I found myself in a low-ceilinged room, where it was very cold, because a window had been broken out. We shivered while we awaited a sentence which would almost certainly be death. The Red Guards constantly stood up victims in the passageways outside. We heard fusillades, followed by cries, and sometimes by applause.

• • •

"Finally, with fifteen associates, they took me into a long hall, where we were thrust on a bench alongside the wall. This was the court. A screen separated us from the judge's tribunal. Every three or four minutes a voice—the voice of Govlov, 'the Bolshevist Marat'—croaked hoarsely:

"'Death! Shoot him!'

"We didn't hear a single acquittal. I saw most of those who had accompanied me disappear.

"My time came. Two Red Guards dragged me roughly to the other side of the screen. I confess that my whole body trembled. I have a great fear of death—especially of a violent death. A mist covered my eyes. Through it I saw dimly three human forms. The first was writing; the second spoke; the third listened or put questions.

"I knew at once that the second was the dvornik. He was accusing me, without stint and in the most violent phrases, of having conspired against the Soviets. My vision cleared a little. My eyes were fixed on the dvornik, and then on the judge. Astonishment almost over-came my terror. I recognised that irregular beard, full on the right, scanty on the left—that frog's face and that interminable flat mouth.

"It seemed to me that the verdigris eyes also recognised me. They were bent on me ferociously and my trembling came back again.

"When the dvornik had finished the creaking voice asked:

"'Well, is he lying?'

"'He is lying,' I said, with all the vehemence I could command.

"Suddenly the atrocious face was distended into a smile. Then it burst into a laugh.

"'Come here,' cried 'the Bolshevist Marat.'

"He put his hand on my shoulder. Then, full of satanic pride, he said:

"'See! You know that I had a world of ideas in my head! And this dvornik is a pig of a liar. You understand, dvornik? You have accused an innocent man. In that case the accuser is guilty and, in consequence, deserves death. You are condemned to die. Take him away and shoot him!'

"Two Red Guards seized the dvornik, who bellowed with fright, and led him away to the place of execution.

"'If I had let him off,' said Govlov with a grin, 'he would have gone somewhere else and denounced you. And you would have been condemned. Shake hands, brother. The Reaction is frightful. I have to work like a dog. But if anybody annoys you again, insist on being brought before me for trial.'"

One More New Yorker Is In Line For Peerage

London, September 25.—It may be that the future Lord Fermoy lives in New York and disports himself in society there and at Newport. Without discussing any legal complications that may exist on either side of the Atlantic, without even knowing the wishes or inclinations of the popular and amiable young gentleman in question, it remains that Maurice Burke Roche may be the fourth Baron Fermoy.

For Edward Fitz Edmund Burke Roche, second Baron Fermoy, passed away suddenly a short time ago at Barmouth, the little Welsh town where he had been stopping. Although the Irish peer had reached the allotted age of seventy, his demise was sudden. Seemingly in the best health, he was taking the air in Barmouth the day before.

His successor to the Barony is James Boothby Burke Roche, who has led revolutions in South America, fought red Indians in the wilds of North America, searched for gold in Alaska and oil in Texas, and performed a Capt. Kettle exploit which set three European capitals to talking.

But, more important and interesting to Americans—the new Lord Fermoy on September 12, 1880, married the lovely Frances Work, eldest daughter of Frank Work of New York City. Five years later, twin sons were born to them, Edmund Maurice and Francis George Burke Roche. In the due course of nature the elder of these twins, Edmund Maurice, may, if it please him, succeed to the peerage in place of his adventurous father, now 69 years old.

DIVORCE DISPUTED

True it is that the marriage of James Boothby Burke Roche and Miss Frances Work was anything but happy. She obtained a divorce from him in the courts of the State of Delaware in 1891 and made another marriage which proved no more felicitous then the first. But the English courts did not recognise the divorce and the present Lord Fermoy ignored it.

Even mention of it irritated him. He sued two newspapers that wrote of him as a divorced man and was content when they apologised and paid $500 to charitable institutions. He sued the aristocratic and authoritative Burke's Peerage for describing him as divorced. The English courts regarding the Delaware decree as illegal in Great Britain could do nothing but give judgment against the publishers. Since then "the Peerage" has refrained carefully from even mentioning that the Burke Roche marriage was sundered, although, of course, the proceedings were entirely proper and legal in Delaware and the divorce cannot be questioned in the United States, and the 1920 issue of Whitaker's Peerage puts it thus, cautiously:

"Married, 1880, Frances, daughter of F. Work of New York, who obtained an American divorce, 1891."

The same authority speaks of "Edmund Maurice, second heir" of the old baron who has joined his ancestors. For the laws of primogeniture and entail in Great Britain are as immutable as the decrees of the Medes and Persians.

It is true too that Frank Work, who execrated his son-in-law, bequeathed half his fortune, estimated at $15,000,000 in trust, to Mrs. Burke Roche, her twin sons and her daughter, Cynthia, now Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden of New York. And it is understood here that Mr. Work expressly stipulated in his will that his grandsons were never to receive a penny of his money unless they abandoned the name Burke Roche, cut off all association with their father and refrained from visiting England.

It is also understood that, rather than keep out of England, where they were born, rather than change their name to Work, the twins technically placed themselves in the position of forfeiting their shares in their grandfather's great estate. But they were not losers actually, for the members of the Work family made a voluntary agreement under which Edmund Maurice and Francis George each received the handsome fortune of $2,715,000. Maurice is in London today.

Their very names prove their descent. The founder of the family was Edward Roche Fitz Maurice Fitz Edmund, who died in 1626 leaving three sons, Francis, Edmund and Maurice, the eldest of whom, Francis, was High Sheriff of County Cork in 1641. Through succeeding generations of the family run the names Edmund, Maurice and Francis and several of the Burke Roche women were named Frances, as was she whom the present Lord Fermoy took to wife.

The motto on the Fermoy arms is "Mon Dieu est Mon Roche" (My God Is My Rock). But the new Lord Fermoy seems to have stood, all through life, on the rock of self-confidence. He was graduated from Cambridge and was an M. P. from East Kerry from 1896 to 1900, during which time there were some very pretty shindies in Ireland and in Parliament about Ireland.

He will be remembered longer for his daring in the Russo-Japanese War. Under the very noses of the British police and naval and revenue authorities, he ran the torpedo boat destroyer Caroline from the Thames to Libau and delivered her to Russia. This smashed all international law that applies to a nation neutral as between two combatants.

That affair was the result of a bet between Burke Roche and several officers of the Russian Admiralty in a club in St. Petersburg. The Russians were belittling the bravery of the British. They exasperated Burke Roche by saying that the reason they could not get vessels from England was not because British firms were unwilling to sell, but because no Briton could be found with courage enough to take a boat away and deliver her to Russia.

"I will bet £500," exclaimed Burke Roche, "that if you get a boat I will deliver her to you."

"Done!" cried the Russians joyously.

WORLD FAMOUS FEATS

Obligingly Burke Roche went further. He negotiated for the Caroline with the Messrs. Yarrow. She lay in their shipyards on the Thames. And he won $2,500 by sailing her into Libau on the Baltic by way of the Kiel Canal, probably. It was really very awkward for the British Government. This country could be held legally and financially responsible for any damage the Caroline might do to Japanese men of war or shipping. So a warrant was issued for Burke Roche's arrest. He was liable to be arrested and imprisoned and all that sort of thing the moment he set foot on British territory.

Like a sensible man, if daring, he stayed in Paris a while, and the affair blew over, for his offense was not regarded as affecting his honor. In fact his exploit aroused much of the spirit of adventure that inspires the English-speaking race.

On another visit to Paris Burke Roche gave to three or four Apaches a lesson in what the French call "le boxe;" showed them he knew how to handle his fists. Although hard put to it, he thrashed the ruffians who had attacked him and held two of them until the police seized them.

Lord Fermoy is one of the few men to whom a monument has been erected during his life. He disappeared in the United States; months passed, no trace of him was found. His mother, who dearly love him, had a shaft put up in his memory. Burke Roche reappeared, as handsome and distinguished as when he sat to Millais. He had been on a long journey, hunting or exploring, and he really could not understand why any one, even his mother, should have worried about him. Was he not able to take care of himself?

Fermoy is still receiving from hosts of friends congratulations upon his succeeding to the family title; which however, does not give him a seat in the House of Lord, being only an Irish peerage. He may be elected, however, by the entire adult peerages a member for life. The new Baron has accepted the situation with characteristic philosophy, making no secret of the fact that the inheritance going with the title is not considerable. At heart he is an adventurous Bohemain and good natured to a fault.
